Officers Schmidt (Jonah Hill) and Jenko (Channing Tatum) go deep undercover at a local college, but when Jenko meets a kindred spirit on the football team, and Schmidt infiltrates the bohemian art major scene, they begin to question their partnership.

IN THEATRES NOW

Godzilla

The film retells the origin of Godzilla in contemporary times as a "terrifying force of nature".

Neighbors

Seth Rogen, Zac Efron and Rose Byrne lead the cast of Neighbors, a comedy about a young couple suffering from arrested development who are forced to live next to a fraternity house after the birth of their newborn baby.

Mr. Jones

Mr. Jones – doesn't like to be disturbed, and only comes out at night when he drags his strange, sinister sculptures deep into the woods. When Scott and Penny's curiosity leads them too close for Mr. Jones' comfort, he plunges the young couple into a nightmare world of mayhem, madness and mind-bending terror.

Cheap Thrills

Craig, is an auto mechanic who loses his job. He is unable to pay his rent and after seeing the eviction sign, he goes to a bar, where he meets someone from his old high school, Vince. A rich couple, Colin and Violet, give them money for completing certain tasks. The tasks are simple at first, but they later become extremely complicated.

If you're looking for a comedy, this isn't the film for you. The trailers that I watched seem to indicate there would be lots of laughs but the film starts off with Craig losing his job and stays right there - in the land of hopelessness. There are laughs sprinkled in, if you have a dark sense of humor. Overall, it's very entertaining and the twisted task will leave you on the edge of your seat, right up until the surprise ending.

Available on DVD and RedBox

Reservoir Dogs

After all these years I finally watched this film. If you, like me, have put it off...watch it! It takes some time to develop but once it does, it really smacks you in the mouth.

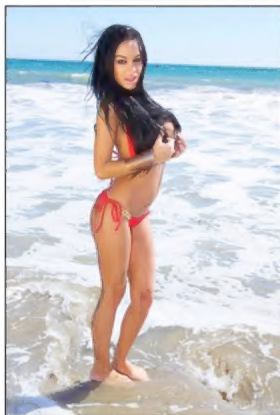

Best Exotic Marigold Hotel

This has all the making of a great film. It has a little bit of drama, characters that you can relate to and a decent story line. However, even though it was somewhat entertaining it also seems rather pointless and disappointing....SKIP IT!!!

A while back a few of our readers sent in questions about the realism of squirting. Can you explain this phenomenon and help put to rest any thoughts that these types of shots involve CGI?

I am for sure a super squirter!!!! I can hit a target 15 feet away... It all has to do with the G spot... the first time I squirted, someone did it for me... I didn't even know I could do that!

U have to hit the G spot so hard that it explodes!!!! Its sooo much fun! Once u get control over ur body then u can squirt on command (at least I can) hahaha...

Album of the Month

One of the things that made Michael Jackson a phenomenal entertainer and sold 104 million copies of the album Thriller was his music and style were timeless. Tracks like Billie Jean are just as hot and relevant as it was when it was first released. So it was a no brainer to release some of the tracks that didn't make the cut on MJ's previous albums. At first listen, you can almost pick out the album that it was cut from. Though I'm not a fan of anything posthumous unless the artist passed during the project, this is a fantastic offering from the greatest ever.

Tracks to look out for - Xscape.

The Gulf 4 years later

The Deep Horizon oil Spill aka The Gulf Oil Spill began on April 20, 2010 in the Gulf of Mexico on the BP-operated Macondo Prospect. It claimed eleven lives and is considered the largest accidental marine oil spill in the history of the petroleum industry, an estimated 8% to 31% larger in volume than the previously largest, the Ixtoc I oil spill. Following the explosion and sinking of the Deepwater Horizon oil rig, a sea-floor oil gusher flowed for 87 days, until it was capped on 15 July 2010. The US Government estimated the total discharge at 4.9 million barrels (210 million US gal). After several failed efforts to contain the flow, the well was declared sealed on 19 September 2010. Some reports indicate the well site continues to leak.

What they did to "clean up" this oil spill was use the chemical Corexit. The chemical is supposed to dissolve the oil by turning it into tiny droplets that can then be easily broken down by bacteria. This process is also supposed to prevent the oil from washing up on the beach and marshes of Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi and Alabama.

Though Corexit has been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency, that decision was called into question in a 2013 report by the Government Accountability Project that alleges that the use of Corexit has "devastating long-term effects on human health and the Gulf of Mexico ecosystem."

According to Marine toxicologist Dr. Riki Ott - "Corexit is definitely a poison by itself, the trouble is so is oil. When oil and Corexit combine it actually way worse than either alone because the Corexit pulls it into the body, into cells. During the Exxon Valdez oil spill the workers were peeing black."

So the EPA actually asked BP to choose a less toxic dispersant or show proof that Corexit was the best available. BP responded by stating that Corexit was no more or less toxic than the other dispersants that the EPA had deemed acceptable.

The EPA then asked BP to cut their use of the dispersant down 25%.

What actually happened was a decrease of 9%. There was 1.84 million gallons of the toxic Corexit used on the spill and 58% of that was sprayed from the air.

So what's in Corexit that makes it so toxic?

In response to public pressure, the EPA and Nalco released the list of the six ingredients in Corexit 9500, revealing constituents including sorbitan, butanedioic acid, and petroleum distillates.

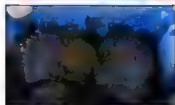

The manufacturer's own safety data sheet identified the main components as 2-butoxyethanol and a proprietary organic sulfonate with a small concentration of propylene glycol. Warnings from the Hazardous Substance Fact Sheet for 2-Butoxyethanol include: "Cancer Hazard: 2-Butoxy Ethanol may be a carcinogen in humans since it has been shown to cause liver cancer in animals. Many scientists believe there is no safe level of exposure to a carcinogen....Reproductive Hazard: 2-Butoxy Ethanol may damage the developing fetus.

Chemist Wilma Subra expressed her concern about the danger of the Corexit-crude mixture, telling GAP investigators, "The short-term health symptoms include acute respiratory problems, skin rashes, cardiovascular impacts, gastrointestinal impacts, and short-term loss of memory....long-term impacts include cancer, decreased lung function, liver damage, and kidney damage."

So what we have now is this...

Children with missing hair or covered with rashes who also have respiratory problems.

Big chunks of solid oil being pulled out of the Gulf by fishing boats.

And shrimp that have deformities or oil trapped in their gills. It's said that 50% of the shrimp in Louisiana are deformed.

And who is covering this?

Certainly CNN, who covered nothing but the disappearance of a plane for more than a month.

Or maybe it was the liberal MSNBC...no?

Has this story been featured on any of the major networks? Nope!

It was covered by HBO's Vice!

The question is why?

The major networks pretty much dropped this story the minute it was announced that the leak had been sealed. Of course, anyone with a bit of common sense knew that the story wasn't over. Sure they made a few fancy commercials stating that the "Gulf was back!"

Did we really think that 200 million gallons of oil in the ocean just magically disappeared because BP and the government said it did?

Yep!

The truth is there is still oil washing up on the shore line, fishing boats are pulling chunks of solid oil out of the ocean, the marine life has been effected for God knows how long and people are incredibly ill from the spill with a sickness that could literally last for generations.

If you care about what is STILL happening in the Gulf get involved and let your voice be heard!

American Deception

As the publisher of a magazine, I really don't have the time to read a lot of other magazines. I spend most of my time online for various reasons. The only publication that I hold in my hand and read on a regular basis is the local newspaper. As I've done in the past, for full disclosure - I'm a registered independent. I listen to Rush Limbaugh everyday and Glenn Beck when I can catch him, depending on my schedule. I also listen to KPHX, the progressive radio station and while I work in the evening I usually watch MSNBC.

I've said this so many times that it's probably getting old for our regular readers

I used to watch Fox every night, I loved Bill O'Reilly and Hannity & Colmes...before Colmes left.

I have been accused of publishing a liberal/left leaning publication and that's not the case at all.

What I publish and what our articles focus on is right and wrong not left or right.

There are things that Limbaugh says that I totally agree with, the same can be said about Glenn Beck.

The same can be said about those on the other side of the isle - I publish what I believe is right or wrong.

When it comes to climate change I take a very simple position. What goes up must come down. The simple fact that we can see the clouds that form in the sky and it's elementary that the droplet in those clouds become heavy and fall to the earth. The rain becomes a source of water for the planet. Even if the gases that we omit aren't causing the planet to heat up, why would we want to continue to pollute the air we breathe or the water that we drink, especially the water that fall down on us. How long can we pollute that process until it becomes toxic. So no matter what your position is on climate change, it makes sense to stop shitting on the table that you eat at.

Right?

Yet there is this huge debate on whether or not we should cut down on emissions into our atmosphere. One side says we should stop while the other is saying it's just a huge hoax.

Again, if there is a glass of water that not only you but your family members for generations to come plan to drink, you don't want to piss in it. What continues to astonish me is that there are people that believe that saying you shouldn't piss in it is all a hoax

Most recently there has been push back on Michelle Obama's healthy school lunch program. Rush Limbaugh suggested that the first thing that you do to bond with a pet, is to feed it.

As a parent, I get it! It is my responsibility to feed my children even when they are at school.

However, there have been days when they have eaten the lunch that they provide at school, which I pay for...it's not free! When that happens, I certainly don't want them to eat a bowl of salt with a Mt. Dew!

As a kid, I don't remember ever having what I would consider a healthy lunch. Though I don't really remember elementary school other than the fact that if you wanted a milk with your lunch, you better have a dime! When I got to High School it was about choice and the choices were a plenty! I could go through the line and get a pizza, or some other crap with a side of fries - skipping past the vegetables that they were offering. If I had an extra dollar I could get a soda and a peanut butter bar to go with it.

I'm not really sure why anyone would have a problem with schools offering a health lunch, low in sodium and other garbage that usually comes with a school lunch. My kids are only allowed to have McDonalds on rare occasions because (sorry Mickey Ds) that food will kill you.

What's wrong with requiring schools to serve healthy lunches? If you want your kid to eat a bunch of crap, then you are well within your right to send it with them every morning in a brown paper bag, like the one Paul Ryan is crazy about.

What we really don't have the right to do is require that those kids who have to eat school lunches, die from a heart attack at an early age because they were fed garbage once or twice a day for 12 years.

At the end of the day...who DOESN'T want their kids to eat healthy?

The list goes on and on...

If you fall from a tree and just happen to break your leg, wouldn't you like to know that you can go to a hospital and have that taken care of for free?

Without health insurance that broken leg could cost up to $35,000. That's really expensive for an accident and I don't know about you but I don't have an extra $35,000 just lying around.

The cost of a broken leg WITH INSURANCE could be as little as $125. Yeah co-pay...I can borrow $125 if I really had to.

That's on a personal level. The next question is why is my co-pay $125? Well, that's because those of us with insurance have to pay for the ones without in the form of higher premiums and co-pays. It's not free!

I'm with Mitt Romney, get the hell out of my pocket and cover your own insurance so I can pay $75 for my trip to the ER instead of $125. I'm really tired of having to carry your weight when it comes to my health.

Again, there is a fight over this. Some say that requiring people to purchase insurance is somehow taking away American freedom.

I don't remember anyone asking me if I wanted to pay for John Smith's ER bill? Did anyone send you a letter asking if it was okay to include Mr. Smith's bill in your 2014 premiums? No?

Yes, please require EVERYONE to buy health insurance just like car insurance so they can get the the fuck out of my pocket. Anyone ever notice that as you get older the cost of car insurance goes down? That's because the majority of us who carry their own weight are SHARING that cost. Why my body and life aren't protected in the same way - if not better - than I protect my car is beyond me. While that vehicle depreciates in value the moment I drive it off the lot, I like to think I'm getting better with age lol!

Another hot ticket item is raising the minimum to $10.10 which is a joke! Seattle is moving forward to move their minimum wage to $15 an hour. On a personal note I applied for the job that I have now because someone told me that the position that I applied for started a $15 an hour. I would guess, just going out on a limb here, that anyone who isn't making $15 an hour would really like to. If that means that some people will lose their jobs at certain companies then I guess that is the price we will have to pay. Though, I don't really think that would be the case. Simple economics here but if people have more to spend on apples, they normally buy more apples. When more apples are bought, then more apples are produced in order to make sure there is enough supply to meet the demand. In order to increase the supply it's likely that the apple orchard person (lol) will hire more people to pick more apples.

Without getting too heavy - what has been happening as more and more companies move jobs offshore in order to take advantage of cheaper labor, wages have remained stagnant, people are purchasing less, prices have gone up to meet a companies bottom line and the middle class has dropped below the poverty line.

Again, who would really want a job that insures that they will be able to pay their bills and eat?

The only reason some of these basic needs are even up for a debate is the amount of corporate dollars that have been injected into our political system and our media. They have managed to control the conversation and bombard us with a non-ending bunch of nonsense.

In short...we have been deceived!

It makes sense when you think about it. A single donation from a major corporation can cancel out more than 20,000 votes or more in any given area. I get that number from a couple of assumptions so it's not fact. I'm assuming that company A donates $100,000 while the general public donates $5. As much as I like or want to get behind any cause or politician, I have never donated more the $10 because in my opinion, it's worse than gambling.

I have to admit that I really have a sense of hopelessness when it comes to a way out of this black hole of misinformation.

It's not something that I think will change in my lifetime though I'm starting to see some signs of change. There's the situation in Seattle, Portland, OR has passed legislation to stop funding Wal-Mart in their city. Kynect is one of the nation's most popular health insurance program (at least they are getting the most coverage), Moral Mondays have spread for North Carolina to South Carolina and Georgia and the billionaire Kochs are being mentioned by name on the floor or Congress as a threat to democracy.

Right now I would say that we are just moving out of the first stage of awakening which is denial. The second stage is anger.

My hope is that there are enough people motivated and organized that the necessary changes are made and we don't move into the last three stages...

- Bargaining
- Depression

then...

- Acceptance!

Cheap & Sexy - Romantic Desserts for a Crashed Economy

I'm a firm believer that whether the economy is horrible or great, it's no excuse not to keep things sensuous and sexy. Life is meant to be enjoyed, even if it's on a small scale. I know that's easier said than done, but it can be done. Growing up, I wasn't born with a silver spoon. I was raised to be frugal and even when my family was down to their last few bucks, my mom always came up with an awesome dessert or something to put a smile on my face as a kid. As an adult, that concept has gotten me through some tough times. We're all painfully aware that this sucky economy has been in the trash for years with no end in sight. People who never clipped a coupon in their lives or looked for a sale are bargain hunting. Even if you're doing okay financially, your money or job situation can change in a heartbeat with layoffs, downsizing and rampant outsourcing. But whether the economy has been good or bad, I've always saved my money. If I won the lottery tomorrow, my lifestyle wouldn't change (okay, I might buy a newer "used" car) but I wouldn't live radically different. This mindset has freed me from being a slave to money so that I can enjoy the things that truly matter to me. Not only that, just on principle I refuse to overpay and get ripped off by greedy corporations. I also refuse to "keep up with the Jones' "- a game that has destroyed America and driven people into mountains of debt. It's sad that many people think that "frugal" means "ghetto" or losing the romance and sensuality of life. Nothing could be farther from the truth, unless you're one of the brainwashed sheep who think sensuous food is expensive. I have a huge sweet tooth, I'm never gonna give up dessert no matter what! So, for our TF readers, here's some desserts that I make all the time. Even on the tightest budget, there's nothing here that'll break your bank, and remember, it's not the cost of the ingredients, it's the way you "serve" them!

Dreamy Pistachio With Vanilla Cookie Crumble

I love pistachio pudding, but if you prefer banana or vanilla, you can usually find those flavors at my fave place, the Dollar Store!. The pale green of the pistachio creates an amazingly romantic presentation on a hot summer night.

This dreamy little dessert is really nice and simple to make. And best of all, people will think it's more expensive than it is. Here's the breakdown:

COST: 50 cents for one box of instant pistachio pudding purchased at Dollar Store

99 cents for one box of generic vanilla cookies (don't buy the pricey brand name Nilla cookies which are usually three times as much!)

2 cups of milk

Total Cost: Around TWO BUCKS for four servings = about fifty cents per serving.

This is the dessert I made last night - served in a chilled wine glass.

Sexy Comfort Food - Bread Pudding

Bread pudding is a dessert that most people who grew up in the southern states are very familiar with. Some folks have never eaten bread pudding and I pity them, because it's a fabulously sexy dessert, especially in the winter.. It can be as expensive or as basic as you want, but either way, it's really yummy. It's made with leftover, dried out bread. Historically, bread pudding was a way for people to stretch their budget and not let anything go to waste. I always save bread that dries out. I freeze it and after a few months, I have enough to make bread pudding. You don't want fresh bread to make bread pudding. The drier, the better because it soaks up the eggs and milk and gives it that creamy "pudding" consistency.

RECIPE: 8 slices of dry bread, lightly buttered and cubed. Put the bread in a baking dish. Beat two eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 tsp cinnamon, 1 tsp. vanilla and pour over the bread.

Soak it for about 30 min before baking. You can add raisins if you want. Bake in 350-degree oven for about 45 min. It's almost impossible to ruin bread pudding. Even if you were totally broke and had nothing but the dry bread, the eggs, and the milk, it would still taste good. Believe me, I've done it.!

COST: The bread costs practically nothing, since it's something you already on hand. Cinnamon and vanilla can be expensive, so I always watch for sales and coupons. I made my last batch of bread pudding using cinnamon I got for $1.50 at Dollar Store, and it tasted just as good as the pricier brands.. And the best part? It's been scientifically proven that guys get horny when they smell cinnamon wafting through the kitchen! Bread pudding truly is the ultimate proof that dessert does not have to be expensive to be sexy and divine. You can also serve it chilled or topped with some chocolate sauce. Winter or summer, it's one of my favorite CHEAP and SEXY desserts!

BREAKFAST IN BED?...Chocolate Toast

By definition, anything chocolate is gonna be sexy, but it doesn't have to be expensive. Chocolate toast is a quirky personal family recipe of mine. I had never heard of chocolate toast outside my own family, but apparently other people know about it too! It's cheap and satisfying but also romantic for a cozy morning breakfast in bed treat. It almost gives the feeling of chocolate pastry without the expense.

RECIPE: Spread bread with a thin layer of butter or margarine, sprinkle a bit of sugar on top, then sprinkle some cocoa powder (or substitute chocolate bits, any type of chocolate crumbled will work) and swirl the ingredients around. Put the bread under the broiler until the sugar, chocolate and butter are melty and gooey and yummy!

COST: Four slices of white (or wheat bread) makes

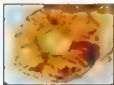

Broiled / Grilled Pineapple

I always keep several cans of pineapple in my pantry. I never buy the pricey brand name pineapple - I buy it as cheaply as possible, usually from Dollar Store which is my "go to" place. Broiling or grilling pineapple is a quick, easy and amazingly sexy dessert, and it's good for you! Pineapple satisfies your sweet tooth and is exotic and yummy, perfect for arousing those sexy feelings while keeping your budget intact. .

RECIPE. Sprinkle a bit of brown sugar on top of each pineapple ring, along with 1 tsp of butter or margarine and broil or grill for 5 minutes. If you want to splurge, top with a little vanilla ice cream.. Great for summer grilling or broil inside during the winter

COST: A 20 oz. can of pineapple rings for 99 cents at Dollar Store, each can usually contains 10 rings. That's about 25 cents a serving. I usually keep 10 or more cans in my pantry at all times so I never feel deprived of one of my favorite desserts. I also save the pineapple juice from the can and use it for sweetening other desserts. I try not to waste anything!

PUMPKIN TARTS

Pumpkin puree is another "must have" item I always have around. Most people only buy it during the holidays for pumpkin pie, but it's so healthy and you can buy it super cheap, less than $1 a can As always, I never buy the brand name canned pumpkin, I always get the cheapest from Dollar Store or 99 cent store and keep at least 10 or more cans on hand. You can do a lot of things with canned pumpkin. For romantic treats, I like to make individual tarts

RECIPE: One 15 oz can of pumpkin ($1 or less per can)

One 12 oz can of evaporated milk (not the brand name. I buy Sunshine brand, $1 or less)

2 eggs

3/4 cup sugar

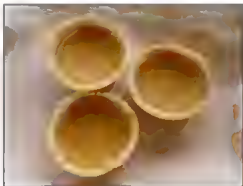

1 tsp. vanilla (look for sales, buy it cheap)

1 tsp, cinnamon, 1/2 tsp, nutmeg

1 box Jiffy pie crust mix (99 cents, I never, ever buy expensive pre-made frozen pie crust)

Press crust into muffin tin. Pour the pumpkin mixture into the tins, bake at 350 for about 30 minutes. Makes 10-12 tarts.

COST: If you avoid spending on brand name ingredients such as expensive pre-frozen pie crust or evaporated milk, this is a very cheap dessert and it's cute and romantic! I've even found that just a can of pumpkin, a couple of eggs, and a dash of cinnamon baked in a dish is great too!

THE ROMANTIC STANDBY- CHOCOLATE COVERED STRAWBERRIES (or cherries, bananas, etc.)

I never buy those pricey chocolate-covered strawberries - . I refuse to pay the outrageous mark-ups and shipping costs on stuff that I can easily make myself and put my own love into! Depending on where you shop or what's in season, you can usually get 1lb of fresh strawberries for $2.00 or so. .I'll leave it up to you to bargain hunt for the best price on the fruit. You can really save money on the chocolate used to dip them. I buy a generic 12 oz bag of semi-sweet chocolate chips, usually for $1.00, - I never buy expensive bags or blocks of chocolate for dipping fruit.

COST: Between the fruit and the chocolate, it's around $3.00 or so. That's a helluva lot cheaper than $30-50 (or more) for insanely overpriced "gourmet" chocolate dipped strawberries.

And , as pointed out., it's not the price of the ingredients, it's the presentation!

I hope these sexy little dessert ideas have inspired and motivated you to keep the sensuality alive, even when the going gets rough. Yeah, the economy may be in the dump, but you can still have your cake and it eat too!

KEEP IT CHEAP AND SEXY, LOVERS!

Jack Watson's Complete Guide To Creating

Female Glamour

Images From Nudes To Fashion

Includes CD-ROM with all images

By Jack Watson

Award-winning photographer Jack Watson has crafted a unique book dedicated to female glamour images created in black and white to honor the famous Hollywood girls photographed in the 1920's and 30's. With the help of a large collection of stunning glamour models who have been featured globally in many print, web, and video media including Playboy Entertainment™, Watson shows you how he creates sensual, seductive glamour black and white images out of virtually any color glamour photograph. Dispelling the myth that not all color images make good black and white images, this book illustrates how virtually any glamour photo can create the look of the Hollywood mansion.

Jack Watson's Complete Guide to Creating Black and White Female Glamour Images includes a CD with every photo in the book. All of the black and white photos started out as color digital files. They have been provided in their original color form for your unrestricted non-commercial use. This book is for those who have some basic Photoshop skills and want to broaden their horizons and experiment with additional plug-ins and software such as Nik Color Efex Pro Complete, Nik Silver Efex Pro, Topaz Adjust, and Topaz BW Effects. It's also for anyone who just loves looking at beautiful black and white female glamour images.

While most of the images in the book are "nude" in nature, a number of examples show how easy it is not always the naked truth, but quite the contrary. Clothed or nude, the female form is a thing of beauty. At the very least, this book will make you rethink what is truly glamorous. Creating black and white glamour photos will help you see with your brain and feel with your heart. Remember it's not what you see in a photograph that moves you; it's what you don't see. So, boot up your computer, open your favorite photo software, and put the CD in the drive, and create some magic.

In keeping with what has become somewhat of a tradition here at TFM, we feature yet another Kardashian story. Just for good measure, we are AGAIN covering the authenticity of the Kardashian booty, though this time it's (wait for it) Khloe's!!!

It seems that there are some questions surrounding the backside of the taller Kardashian but this time they are speculating whether or not it's...real? Really?

I feel like we've done this before. Anyway, Khloe claims that she's really been working hard in the gym on her ass...there, do you feel better?

Alki David has filed suit against Michael Jackson's estate, MJ's production company and Dick Clark productions to prevent a life size hologram performance of the King of Pop's new tunes at the Billboard Music Awards.

David, who owns the technology, claims that it will interfere with his own plans to feature the performance at another high-profile event.

If only there were so many lawsuits and demand for Michael Jackson when he was alive maybe they wouldn't have to fight over a hologram.

STORY OF THE MONTH

Unless you were living in a tent somewhere in the great outdoors for the past couple of months, I'm sure you heard about the Solange Knowles (Beyonce's sister and Jay's in-law) Mortal Kombat style attack on Jay Z in an elevator at the Met Ball.

Ironically, this is the best picture EVER in capturing what happened in those few combative moments on the elevator.

- Jay checking his lips, shirt out
- Proud sister Beyonce
- Solange with that "I just whipped that ass" look

Priceless!
